OUR BUSY MEN

Here and There Among the Cincinnati Hives of Industry.

The work of slating the roof of Exposition Building has been commenced.

A fine stone pavement is being laid on Race street in front of Jas. R. Peebles Sons grocery.

The foundation work for the cascade in Floral Hall is being laid. It is made of heavy coarse rock, and is being very substantially built.

Mr. Dudley Beal, formerly of Amelia, Clermont County, is now working at his trade, tinner, on the northwest corner of Seventh and Main.

Mr. Martin Heisel, having sold his factory on the corner of Clark and Harriet streets to the Walker Brothers, is now doing business on Barton street, near Wade.

Archie Garoutte, formerly an old horse trader, and resident of Cincinnati, is now farming in Iowa. Archie retains his old love for horses, and raises some very fine ones.

A new device, called the Eureka Factory Attachment, has been put upon the market. It is for the purpose of consuming gas, smoke and soot, and effects a great saving of fuel.

Barney Brennan, a member of Company C, Thirtieth Ohio Regiment, during the late war, is carrying on the horse-shoeing business on Twelfth street, between Main and Walnut streets.

Mike Lunderback, having swamped his substance in the grocery business, has returned to his trade, and is now repairing elevators for Neal M. Dennis. Mike avers that he wouldn't trust his best friend again.

Mr. William H. Gault, a young gentleman residing on Pine street, is a very diligent geological student, and by his labors has discovered some fossils, having been by one of the finest and largest cabinets in the city.

The firm of Babbitt, Harkness & Co., having been dissolved, the large and commodious storehouse which they occupied, on the corner of Walnut and Second streets, is now occupied by Messrs. H. L. Stiles & Co., fancy grocers.

The Messrs. Huntington have just built a fine block of dwelling houses on Mount Auburn. These houses are stylish in appearance, and have all the modern improvements, and a good view of the city can be had from them.

Mr. Truman B. Padlock, owner of the firm of M. A. Hunt & Co., printing and bookbinding, was for many years allied with one of the best manufacturing firms of this city.

Mr. Padlock is a thorough business man and a genial gentleman.

Mr. Walter Manning's numerous friends will be glad to hear that he has returned to his home in the late burning of Louis Cook's carriage manufactory.

Mr. James Robinson, of Second street, has given him employment.

Mr. Alex. D. Cuny, the present Superintendent of the Village of Avondale, is an experienced patternmaker and draughtsman, and was for many years employed at the Greenwald Iron-works, and quite recently at the Straub Mill Company.

Mr. Harry Nottingham, formerly of the firm of J. C. Moore & Co., and since the dissolving of that firm, been in the scrap-iron business on the corner of Second and Central avenue. Harry is an old molder by trade, and was at one time foreman for Miles Greenwood.

Mr. James Logan, who has been employed as a boss in the Street Cleaning Department, was discharged at the last meeting of the Board. Mr. Logan was at one time in very good circumstances, having been a member of the firm known as the Greenwald Stone Company. When the company failed he lost all he had, even his comfortable home.

Mr. Adam Kneibbaum, for many years a foreman for Warren Warner, in the iron-rod and nail business, and afterwards employed by some mining company at Idaho, was just seen in San Francisco, Cal. Adam was a good-hearted companion and a kind "boss," and his many friends will regret to learn that his whereabouts at the present time is unknown even to his family, who are still residing in Idaho.

T. B. Snapp's planing mill was destroyed by fire at Terrell, Texas.

Wm. Collier, aged nineteen, son of Rev. C. W. Collier, Waverly, Ohio, was drowned.
Charles Lowell, an old villain, horribly outraged a little girl in Brooklyn and is in jail.

At Hempstead, Texas, R. R. Booth, a prominent farmer, was killed by R. T. Springfield.

Prof. Grimley, in his balloon with a steering apparatus, made an ascent yesterday from Montreal.

A fire at Milwaukee destroyed Davidson & Sons' millinery store, damaging marble to the extent of $3,000.

John D. Wise, a shoemaker, attempted to murder Louise Irwin, his paramour, and then killed himself, at Pittsburg.

Life Not to Be Sold in an Inn.
(No Man's Magazine.)
Epictetus had a happy figure for things like the play of the senses, or literary form and finish, or argumentative ingenuity, in comparison with "the best and master thing" for us, as he called it, the concern how to live. Some people were afraid of him, he said, or they disliked and undervalued them. Such people were wrong; they were unthankful or cowardly. But the things might also be overprized, and treated as final when they are not. They bear to life the relation which inn-keepers bear to home.

"As if a man, journeying home, and finding a nice inn on the road, and liking it, were to stay forever at the inn! Man, thou hast forgotten thine object; thy journey was not to this, but through this. 'But this inn is taking.' And how many others, too, are taking, and how many fields and meadows! But as objects of passage merely. You have an object, which is this: to get home, to do your duty to your family, friends and fellow-countrymen; to attain inward freedom, serenity, happiness, contentment. Style takes your fancy, arguing

ing takes your fancy, and you forget your home and want to make your abode with them and to stay with them, on the plea that they are taking. Who denies that they are taking? But as places of passage, as inns. And when I say this, you suppose me to be attacking the care for style, the care for argument. I am not; I attack the resting in them, the not looking to the end which is beyond them. Now, when we come across a poet like Theophile Gautier, we have a poet who has taken up his abode at an inn, and never got further. There may be inducements to this or that one of us, at this or that moment, to find delight in him, to cleave to him; but, after all, we do not change the truth about him—we only stay ourselves in the inn along with him. And when we come across a poet like Wordsworth, who sings—

"Oft of grandeur, beauty, love and hope,
And melancholy fads of youth,
Of forest consolation in distress,
Of forest consolation in distress,
Of forest consolation in distress,
Of forest consolation in distress,"

then we have a poet intent on the "best and master thing," and who prosecutes his journey home. We say, for brevity's sake, that he deals with life, because he deals with that in which life really consists. This is what Voltaire means to praise in the English poets—that dealing with what is really life. But always it is the mark of the greatest poets that they deal with it; and to say that the English poets are remarkable for dealing with it, is only another way of saying, what is true, that in poetry the English genius has especially shown its power.

Early One Morning in Jolly Brisk
(Charles Matthews.)
Lord Blessington had passed two hours before, and as I was within twenty-five miles of Holyhead I determined to leave my horse comfortable for the night, and to proceed there, but, owing to delays of all kinds, I did not arrive till 2 in the morning. "Is Lord Blessington here?" "Yes, sir." "That's all right," said I. "What time is he to be called in the morning?" "At 4, sir." After two hours' sleep I got up, and, asking for the room where he was to breakfast, I entered, and found him asleep in his cloak on the sofa. I thought I would astonish him out of his sleep, and began "Early one morn a jolly brisk tar," his favorite song.

After getting through a verse he rose, and to my horror discovered a perfect stranger. I instantly recollected that Comte d'Orsay and his aid-de-camp were with him, and in great confusion began: "Tardou, Monsieur, j'ai croie (sic) que c'était moi, mille pardons, &c."

"Ah," said the stranger, yawning, "I was sure you were a Frenchman, sir, by your gaiety." "Mille pardons," said I, and left the room in the character of a Mousmeur Malbrook. I then went to Lord Blessington's bedroom and knocked. "Who's there?" "Early one morn a jolly brisk tar," "By Jove, it's Matthews," said his lordship, who was delighted to see me.

Norfolk Virginian: Bristol is perhaps the only city in the world with two Mayors, two city governments, police, etc., and that is taxed in two States. The line between Tennessee and Virginia is in the center of Main street, and it gives rise to many funny scenes, as, for example, the runaway couple needs no coach and four, but arm-in-arm, stop at the corner of Main street and are wedded. The fugitive commits a crime in Virginia, goes to the pavement on the other side of the street and talks defiantly to the officer on the opposite side, who has a warrant for his arrest. A stumble or a too bold disposition will sometimes, however, bring him to grief.

To ignore the warning of approaching disease is neither cautious nor safe. Prudence would suggest the immediate use of a good preventive remedy, such as Dr. Bull's Baltimore Pills, which eradicate at once all symptoms of bilious diseases.

Take Aver's Pills for all the purposes of a purgative, for constipation, indigestion, headache and nervous complaint. By their use, and accord, they are the best of all purgatives for family use.

What Every Body Says Must Be True.
For thirty-two years there has been no dissenting voice. During that time Dr. Tobias' Venetian Liniment has been warranted as a pain reliever or the money would be refunded. It has made the most wonderful cures, as the certificates show; they can be seen at the depot, 42 Murray street, New York. It is an internal as well as an external medicine, and warranted perfectly harmless. It takes internally, it cures colic, cramp, diarrhea, dysentery, spasms, chronic rheumatism, sore throat, all kinds of pains in limb, back and chest. Cerebral and nervous affections, such as St. Vitus' dance, St. Andrew's, St. Anthony's, St. George's, St. Elizabeth's, St. John's, St. Peter's, St. Paul's, St. James' and St. Mary's, are cured by its use. It is a household necessity, and should be in every family.

CHILL CURE.

NEURALGIA, DYSPEPSIA, BILIOUSNESS, as well as all forms of MALARIAL FEVERS and DISEASES are permanently cured by Magill's Chill Cure, Tonic and Appetizer.

It does not contain Aconite, Colomel, Mercury, Quinine, or Laxative Drugs.

—Do not forget this if you value health. Many medicines now on the market rely on one of these potent poisons or strong drugs, or upon others equally as bad for what little claim they have to merit. At best they only give temporary relief and in the long run do more harm than good. Magill's Chill Cure, Tonic and Appetizer is positively free from these and every other harmful ingredient and may be given to young children or persons in feeble health without possibility of a shadow of injury produced. The proprietor holds himself responsible for the truth of this statement and pledges himself to the public to guard and protect the absolute purity and great merit of this medicine. By personal attention to its manufacture. He receives many letters from persons saying they have been humbugged by worthless medicines. This naturally makes them the more likely to distrust confidence even in articles of real merit. Hundreds of statements similar to the one given here could be published if our space allowed for it.
